Posted on: December 12, 2016

Choosing a retirement location can be a stressful experience, especially when you combine your own questions with the pressures you might be receiving from loved ones to live near them. Here are ten tips to help ensure that your retired life is as wonderful as it can be.

1. Do not Rush Yourself: Determining where and how you are going to spend what should be the most important years of your life is a decision that should be made with care and deliberation. Do not let the pressures of others or the ticking clock of your retirement savings dictate your decision. Take the time to research, visit, and consult with loved ones to make the best choice for you.
2. Consider the Climate: If you are moving to a new location, consider the climate. Do you prefer hot, cold, or moderate weather? Will the climate affect your health or lifestyle?
3. Consider the Cost of Living: Different locations have different costs of living. Will you be able to afford your desired location? Consider housing, taxes, and other expenses.
4. Consider the Healthcare: Will you have access to the healthcare you need? Consider the quality and availability of medical services in your chosen location.
5. Consider the Community: Do you want to live in a large city, a small town, or a rural area? Consider the social scene, amenities, and overall atmosphere of the community.
6. Consider the Proximity to Family: If you have family nearby, consider how close you want to live to them. Proximity can be a significant factor in your decision.
7. Consider the Transportation: Will you have access to the transportation you need? Consider public transit, driving, and walking options.
8. Consider the Safety: Research the crime rate and safety of your chosen location. You want to feel secure in your new home.
9. Consider the Recreation: Do you have hobbies or interests? Consider the availability of recreational activities in your chosen location.
10. Make a Decision: After considering all the factors, make a decision. It's time to truly begin your wonderful retirement. You have decided on a location, so don't look back.
